

FOR HIGH TEST OIL

The Legislature Will Kill the Low Test Act.

OUR JUSTICE COURT BILL A LAW

The Salary Finally Fixed at $1,200. Other Amendments—Routine of the Legislature.

LANSING, Mich., March 21.—There appears to be little doubt that the famous oil inspection bill of the famous "Haw-buck" legislature is slated for revision. At present Senator Salin has a bill before the senate providing for a flash test of 120 degrees and Mr. Moody has a bill before the house providing for a flash test of 130 degrees. The flash test is a closed test and is considered to be the only safe test of oil used for illuminating or heating purposes. The law at present in regard to this test provides for a cup or open test of 120 degrees, which is said to be about equal to 95 or 100 degrees flash test. Messrs. Salin and Moody are armed with statistics showing the danger of continuing the present law, and judging from the last report of the state board of health, Mr. Moody has come nearer reaching the proper degree of safety than has Mr. Salin. However, both bills are guaranteed to be improvements over the present test, but they will increase the price of oil. Both Mr. Salin and Mr. Moody feel confident that the increase in price is but a secondary consideration to safety from explosions and consequent loss of life and property.

It is now proposed to have the house and senate committees on public health meet in joint session to consider both bills and arrive at a conclusion concerning the proper figure guaranteeing a safe test. Prof. Kaskie has signified his willingness to appear before the joint committee, make tests and give such information on the subject as he is in possession of. The meeting will probably be held tomorrow evening.

Mr. Moody's bill was this afternoon referred to the committee on public health, and it was the most important action of the house today, the session being a short one, owing to the adoption of the speaker's recommendation to adjourn, so that the labor committee of the senate and house might have the hall, to hear the members of the several labor delegations present.

They Will Get $1,200 a Year.

The Grand Rapids justice of the peace bill came up again today after having been toyed with by the senate committee on cities and villages. That committee decided that $1,200 a year ought to be about the right figure for a Grand Rapids justice of the peace and so reported to the senate. The senators present, or a majority of them, thought so too. The committee also found, on examining the bill carefully, that in the manner in which it passed the house it did not require the presence of a justice in his office more than one day a week. For fear that this oversight would be taken advantage of, the committee amended it so that the justices will be required to "hold their offices" every day in the year except Sundays and legal holidays. The senate sanctioned the action of the committee and in this condition the bill returned to the house. The friends of the measure appeared to be somewhat surprised at the cut from $1,000 to $1,200 per year salary, but the senate amendments were concurred in and the bill passed on motion of Mr. Anderson. The latter evidently forgot to ask for immediate effect being given the bill, for it was referred after its passage to the committee on congressmen and environment. However, Mr. Anderson "made up" for it all after the session by hustling for the necessary signatures. Speaker Tateum giving him an order for extra help. Governor Rich is expected tonight and it is quite likely that before these lines are read in The Herald the bill will have become a law.

An Appropriation Repealed.

The bill relative to an appropriation for the care of sick, aged and disabled Michigan veterans came up in the house today and was passed to go into effect March 31. Mr. Sumner said he had been requested to explain the bill and proceeded to do so. By its provisions an act by which $5,000 was appropriated for the care of veterans in Harper's hospital, Detroit, is repealed. Mr. Sumner said that the committee which had the matter in charge had decided that as the Soldiers' home in Grand Rapids was provided with a first-class hospital, there was no necessity for the Harper hospital appropriation.

Miscellaneous.

Many petitions for and against the taxation of church property were received in the house today.

A number of petitions were received from residents of the upper peninsula, asking for legislation reducing railroad fares in the upper peninsula. It appears to be quite certain that the appeals will not be in vain.

House bill providing for the division of the state into twelve congressional districts was referred to the special committee on congressional reapportionment, and the bill was referred printed for the use of the committee.

The bill authorizing the village of St. Charles, Saginaw county, to bond itself for $20,000 for public improvements, passed the house and was given immediate effect.

The Michigan school for the blind appropriation bill was referred to the ways and means committee.

The senate resolution authorizing 1,200 copies of the memorial address to the memory of ex-President Hayes, ex-Governor Baldwin and James C. Barker was adopted by the house. It provides for 600 copies for the house and 600 for the senate.

The somewhat famous Lincoln township, Berrien county, bill came up this afternoon in the house. It was passed and given immediate effect. The bill was introduced as a political measure by its opponents, but this was denied by the other side, and as such was at one time promised to be one of the bitterest lights of the session, many delegations having been here from Berrien county to lobby for and against the measure.

The Senate.

The committee on liquor traffic, roads and bridges, etc., announced that they had selected Eli Baldwin of Lansing as clerk of that group of committees, to succeed Charles Campau, resigned.

Senator Weiss presented a long remonstrance, to which 101 signatures were attached, against the Buxton mine law.

The Benton Harbor sewer bill was favorably reported on by the committee on cities and villages and was placed on the general order.

The committee on the state normal school recommended the passage of a bill appropriating $25,000 for a gymnasium at the school.

The Grand Rapids justice of the peace bill as amended by the committee on cities and villages passed.

Muskegon's charter bill was approved. Mr. Duran introduced a concurrent resolution for the appointment of a joint committee—three members of the senate and three of the house—to prepare a complimentary benefit for Mrs. Margaret Custer Calhoun.

A message was sent to the house requesting the return of the Galesburg charter bill.
